Benefit of Project in Regards to the Category Qualification: Please Be Specific

Any jail is an inherently dangerous environment for the spread of germs, disease and contamination. Even with the best conventional cleaning practices, many surfaces get missed on a regular basis due to the sheer size of the area and the detained population performing the majority of the cleaning detail. UV technology was introduced in the hospital and medical settings several years ago with great success to eliminate 99.9% of all surface germs and contaminants that light can reach. This technology has now moved to jail settings with excellent success. This technology is particularly useful on bloodborne pathogens, body fluids, and contaminants that are unable to be seen by the eye. It has become most needed to fight the COVID virus among other human disease.
